About the Building: Dating back to 1883 the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Depot was situated at the eastern edge of Town. The northern section of the building was built for the developing supply center and mining town of Crested Butte. The tracks ran along the east yard that you see today. The Depot withstood the tests of time receiving freight, passengers, and goods on the narrow gauge railroad for over seventy years. It exported coal and lots of it from area coal mines on the narrow gauge rail line that chugged down the East River Valley to Gunnison and beyond. Alas, coal mines were closed in the 1950's and rail lines abandoned leaving this lovely building to stand as a tribute to the once prosperous mining era.

In the 1970's, the Crested Butte Society of the Arts, a local non-profit organization repurposed the building to serve as an event center hosting celebrations, weddings, meetings, and art events over the decades. The Depot was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 2002, and in 2015 it was gifted to the Town of Crested Butte. The Town engaged in rehabilitation work that began in 2012 and was completed in 2016. Local funding together with three grants from History Colorado's State Historical Fund, and hard work by area contractors made this building ready to serve and support your special function.

The Depot is also home to local non-profits and living quarters for the caretaker. We ask that you respect their privacy. This special building also needs your care and thoughtful treatment to ensure future generations can come and enjoy this special place.

We look forward to hosting your special event!
